Daphne has taught hundreds of students throughout North America to free motion quilt on their home sewing machine. And her advice to students is always to 'practice, practice, practice'.

Practicing on small quilt sandwiches takes a huge 'bite' out of your quilting time so she has developed this series of classes to give you more practice time. You won't be wasting precious quilting time as you make projects to increase your skills and become more comfortable with free motion quilting. You will have time to try new designs and work toward becoming an expert free motion quilter. Along the way you will learn some fun basic quilting techniques.

This series is based on the book Daphne recommended in her most recent beginner classes: First Steps to free-motion quilting by Christina Cameli.

She has selected projects that will build your experience as you make the 5 projects she has selected. The book is required for this series. Your supply list includes basic supplies to bring to every class and the preparation work to do for the first session. What you will need for the next session will be discussed at the end of each session. You will have 2 weeks between each class to complete the project and prepare for the next one.

You must have basic free motion quilting experience to attend this class and it is limited to 8 students. A waiting list will be taken if there are more people interested in this series.
